Proterra

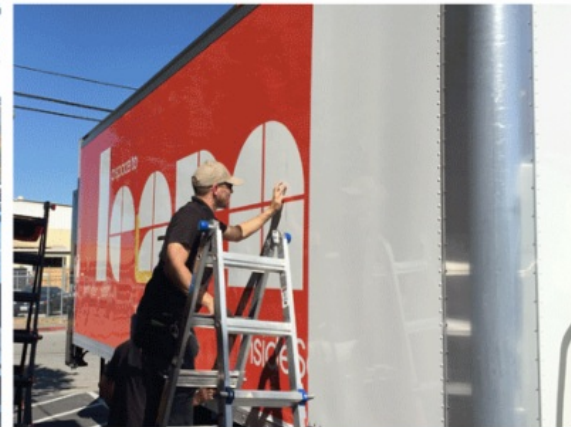

Proterra, a leading innovator in zero emission transit vehicles, wanted bold wall graphics for its new Silicon Valley headquarters. A large map of the United States, floor to ceiling murals depicting their battery electric buses, subtle frosted window film, wall graphics of colorful circuitry and dimensional cut lettering - these are just a few of the items we had the pleasure of producing. We think it looks electrifying!

Dynasty Cleaners and SF Glass

Recently, we've had a couple of fun and interesting window projects. Dynasty Cleaners wanted to spruce up their store front with some lively window graphics. The static windows of old are no more - full panes of perforated window film have brought movement and color to an otherwise underutilized space.

Our neighbors at Solis Family Glass had a dizzying pattern of pixelated shapes for their client LuminaSkin that required a second-surface vinyl installation. The sunflower yellow really brightens up the office space!

Inside Source

Almost a year ago Inside Source was in our newsletter for their new teal box truck. And now they're back - bigger and brighter than ever! A recent company-wide brand redesign heralded the re-design and re-wrapping of all their box trucks. Just in time to brighten up the dark winter days. Keep your eyes peeled - they're already on Bay Area streets near you!
